

Path of the Twisted Magic (Barbarian)

Feeling the call of magic, you have attuned your rage to the Weave itself. Your magic is raw and unrefined, pulled into existence as a byproduct of your supernatural rage, but its power is undeniable, and its origins... unnatural.

Twisted Spellcasting

At 3rd level, you have learned how to cast spells. Consult the following rules for how your spellcasting functions differently from other spellcasters.

Cantrips

You learn two cantrips of your choice from the Warlock spell list. You learn additional Warlock cantrips at levels 10 and 14.

Spell Slots

You have two Twisted Magic spell slots with which to cast spells. You must expend one of these spell slots to cast a non-cantrip spell. You regain all expended Twisted Magic spell slots whenever you finish a short or long rest. Additionally, you can expend a use of your rage (no action required) to regain an expended Twisted Magic spell slot. Once you do so, you cannot do so again until after you finish a long rest.

The level of your Twisted Magic spell slots increases as you level up. Consult the Twisted Spellcasting table to see at what levels your spell slots increase.

Spells Known of 1st Level and Higher

You learn three 1st-level spells of your choice from the Warlock spell list.

Consult the Twisted Spellcasting table to see what levels you learn new spells. Whenever you learn a new spell, it must be of a level that is equal to or less than the level of your Twisted Magic spell slots.

Additionally, whenever you gain a level in Barbarian, you can replace one of the spells you know with another from the Warlock list, as long as the spell is of an appropriate level (as described above).

Spellcasting Ability

Constitution or Charisma is your spellcasting ability; you choose when you take this subclass. You use this ability score whenever a spell or feature refers to your spellcasting ability. This ability score is also used to determine your spell attack rolls and save DC:

Spell save DC: 8 + your proficiency bonus + your spellcasting ability modifier (Constitution or Charisma)

Spell attack modifier: your proficiency bonus + your spellcasting ability modifier (Constitution or Charisma)

Spell Focus

You can use an arcane focus as a spellcasting focus for your spells. If you have a Warlock feature, either through multiclassing, a feat, an invocation, or some other method, that allows you to use something else as a spellcasting focus, you may use that instead if you choose.

Multiclassing

Your levels in this subclass do not count towards the multiclassing spellcasting table, nor do levels in other classes count towards progression in this class.

Twisted Spellcasting Table

Barbarian Level	Cantrips Known	Spells Known	Spell Level	Invocations Known
3	2	3	1	—
4	2	3	1	—
5	2	4	2	—
6	2	4	2	1
7	2	5	2	1
8	2	5	2	1
9	2	6	3	1
10	3	6	3	2
11	3	7	3	2
12	3	7	3	2
13	3	8	4	2
14	4	8	4	3
15	4	9	4	3
16	4	9	4	3
17	4	10	5	3
18	4	10	5	3
19	4	11	5	3
20	4	11	5	3

Note: This subclass gives a choice of spellcasting ability. Barbarians are already typically very multiple-ability-score-dependent; this should hopefully help alleviate some pressure on Barbarians to try to fit another ability score in with whatever their character currently has.

Enraged Magic

Also starting at level 3, your rage has become entangled with magic, opening up new possibilities and abilities to you. While raging, you can cast any spell you have that doesn't require concentration; raging still breaks your concentration on any spells you were concentrating on prior to raging. When you make a spell attack roll against a target within 30 feet while raging, you can treat it as though it were a Strength-based melee weapon attack, allowing it to benefit from your rage damage bonus, Reckless Attack, and any other features that require a Strength-based melee attack.

Additionally, if you have the Primal Knowledge feature, you can add Arcana to the list of skills included in it. (This is an optional feature from Tasha's Cauldron of Everything. If you are playing with the remastered 2024 rules, this feature was included in and improved for the base Barbarian class; you may add Arcana to both the list of proficiency choices and to your improved skills while raging.) If you do not have this feature, you instead gain proficiency in the Arcana skill.

Corrupting Influence

Starting at 6th level, you gain the ability to twist the magic of other creatures when they target you. As a reaction to a creature casting a spell or creating a magical effect that you would be affected by, you can redirect or shut off the magic. If you redirect it, the magic targets the caster instead of you; if it is an area spell, it becomes centered on that creature. If you choose to shut off the magic, the caster must make an ability check using their spellcasting ability modifier, with the DC equal to 10 plus the spell's level. You can use this feature once, regaining its use after a long rest. You gain an additional use per long rest when you reach level 10 and again at level 14.

Additionally, you have manifested an unusual aspect of magic. You learn an invocation from the Warlock class; for the purposes of meeting prerequisites, you can consider your Warlock level to be one half of your Barbarian level, rounded up. If the invocation uses your Charisma modifier, you may substitute it with your Constitution modifier if that is your spellcasting ability. When you gain a level in this class, you can replace your choice with another for which you qualify.

Distracting Rage

Beginning at level 10, you have grown accustomed to the flow of magic and balancing it with your rage. You can now concentrate on spells while raging; beginning your rage doesn't break concentration on spells you were already concentrating on.

Also at 10th level, you can push the mental interference you once felt onto enemies nearby using your magic. While you are raging, creatures of your choice within 30 feet must subtract your rage damage bonus from any saving throws they make against spells you cast or redirect. You may also add your rage damage bonus to the DC of Corrupting Influence's ability to shut down a spell or magical effect.

Lastly, you also gain an additional Warlock invocation. This invocation functions the same as the one granted at level 6, following the same restrictions and functionality.

Relentless Magic

Starting at 14th level, your rage has been linked irreversibly with magic. While you are raging, you cannot lose concentration on a spell unless you choose to stop concentrating (no action required) or you begin concentrating on a different spell or effect.

You also gain a final Warlock invocation, using the same rules as the previous two. However, you may now use your full Barbarian level for one of your invocations in order to meet prerequisites. The other two must still use half your Barbarian level instead.